PROSPECTUS

Building on the success of our first Regional Conference on Broadband and Economic Development last November in Danville, Virginia, Broadband Communities will host its second regional Conference in Chicago, Illinois, on November 5-7, 2013. The Conference will focus on the extraordinary experiences of dozens of communities in America's midwestern heartland, including Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, and Wisconsin. We are assembling an outstanding multi-disciplinary roster of national, regional, and local experts who have extensive experience in using advanced communications capabilities to foster economic development, promote commerce and create jobs. We will examine what is working well, what is not, and what lies ahead, particularly as Federal Stimulus funding ends. Our speakers will provide attendees a wealth of economic research, case histories, how-to materials, and other practical information that they can use effectively in their communities. We will address the latest "hot" topics, including Google Fiber, FirstNet, the Connect America Fund, the FCC's new Health Care Connect Fund, etc., emphasizing each initiatives potential to foster Economic Development and job creation. We will also provide ample time for networking and learning about relevant cutting-edge products and services.
