- Today, roughly one-quarter of American adults do not have broadband internet service at home.
- Five elements: affordable broadband service, a reliable device, computer skills, access to tech support and useful applications
- Not just a rural problem

Leo Delgado

Founder and President, Converged Services

Leo Delgado is the Founder and President at Converged Services.

Leo has been actively involved with the telecommunications and broadband industry for more than 35 years. He holds a B.S. in Accounting from the University of Florida and an MBA from Nova Southeastern University.

As technology advisors with a national presence, Converged Services partners with multifamily developers and owners to ensure technology as an amenity is implemented to increase NOI for our clients, while bridging the digital divide for their residents.
